Underwood Will Help If Proposals Meet With Approval

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—The Muscle Shoals Commission will resume sessions tomorrow and continue through next week when they expect to begin to draft their report, which they will file with President Coolidge. Efforts have been made during the days of recess to bring together the two factions in the commission over the question of government or private operation.

Meanwhile members of congress, who have taken an active part in framing proposed legislation for disposition of Muscle Shoals, are holding in abeyance the preparation of any contemplated measures for the next session, until the commission files its report.

Senator Underwood, of Alabama, who led the fight for an optional government, or private operation measure at the last session, said today that he hoped the president would recommend a measure to congress which he could support.

He said he was ready to endorse any sound proposal that provided for national defense, in which Muscle Shoals was originally intended.

Attorney General Says Almon Diligent In Dry Prosecution

FAMOUS HEARING NEARING AN END

Ten Alleged Members Liquor Ring Are On Trial Also

(Associated Press)

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Oct. 13—The trial of David C. Almon solicitor of the eighth judicial circuit, charged with conspiracy to violate the Volstead act and attempted bribery, went into the second day in the United States district court here Tuesday.

Ten alleged members of a liquor ring, that is claimed to have operated in Albany and Decatur, are on trial as co-defendants.

The trial began yesterday when the government agents testified that after the arrest of Marion Blackwell, Solicitor Almon suggested to them the case did not justify them in reporting it to federal authorities. It was admitted by the agents they came to North Alabama to clean up, at the request of Solicitor Almon.

Attorney General Harwell G. Davis, of Alabama, offered testimony that Solicitor Almon had been unduly diligent in the prosecution of such cases as this.

The foreman today was devoted to examination of defense witness. Pete Collier, one of the defendants with Almon, was the principal witness for the defense this morning.

He testified that no money or other thing of value was offered federal officers by Almon, when he proposed the case against him be confined to the state court.

COMMANDER JOHN RODGERS, good sailor, says commercial aviation should have strong government backing and a subsidy.

Grant the subsidy by all means, if needed, but it won't be needed, for men that make things GO are now interested.

Ford is manufacturer of planes, and in New York Rodger W. W. maker, in his big store, began last week retailing Ford flying machines $25,000 apiece; first come, first served, with prospect of lower prices later.

MR. WANAMAKER will hang on to the Ford flying machine business. His store had, long years ago, the exclusive agency for Ford automobiles, just starting, in all New Jersey, Long Island, New York City and a great part of New York State. But automobiles took up much space, so the agency was dropped.

WHAT do you think that agency would be worth today?

Mr. Weeks Says Health Will Not Permit Him To Continue Work

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—Dwight F. Davis, today was appointed secretary of war.

He takes the place of John W. Weeks, whose retirement because of ill health was formally announced at the white house. The change is effective immediately.

As assistant secretary Mr. Davis has been actual head of the war department since last spring, when Mr. Weeks was sent to New England by his physicians for an operation and a long vacation.

In his letter of resignation, he said it had become apparent he must greatly prolong his vacation, if he is to regain his health. President Coolidge replied that he acceded with great regret to the secretary's insistent request that he be permitted to lay down the official title that he assumed when the Harding administration came into office in 1921.

The new secretary, a lawyer and business man, is in his 40th year and will be the youngest member of the cabinet. He has served in the national guard and reserve corps, has been an active official of various financial, educational, charitable and recreational organizations and is donor of the Davis cup, the most celebrated of tennis trophies.

Mr. Davis has been the Assistant Secretary of War since J. Mayhew Wainwright resigned to take the place in the house of representatives to which he was elected by his New York constituency.

Since Secretary Weeks was stricken last March with the illness that has resulted in his decision to retire Mr. Davis has been acting secretary and has borne the full administrative burden of the department.

Many other names are known to have been suggested to the president

FORBES FIELD, Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 13—The warring factions in the 1925 world's series, Pittsburgh and Washington, came back to their original battleground today to take up the sixth game of their struggle for premier's baseball honors.

Washington, checked suddenly yesterday in its onward advance, by the furious attack of the Pirates, took the field nevertheless with the advantage of three games to two and needing only a triumph this afternoon to gain their second straight world's series championship.

The Pirates on the other hand, stirred to their best fighting pitch for the first time in the series, were confident they were on the high tide to victory and headed toward triumph today and tomorrow, both of which must be realized if they are to take the main prize.

The setting for the sixth skirmish was bright and clear, after three days of bad weather and almost continuous downpour, although this deluge left the unprotected portion of the field soggy. The infield was dry and in good condition since it had been covered in the absence of the combatants in Washington.

Both teams came back a bit worn after the effects of three stirring engagements in the national capital, especially in the pitching department, but otherwise they had their final strength ready to swing into action again.

The line ups: Washington—Rice, cf. S. Harris, 2b. Goslin lf. J. Harris, rf. Judge, 1b. Traynor, 3b. Bleuge, 3b. Peck, ss. Severied, c. Fergusson, p. Pittsburgh—Moore, 2b. Carey, cf. Cuyler, rf. Barnhart, lf. Traynor, 3b. Wright, ss. McInnis, 1b. Smith, c. Kremer, p.

Bleuge tossed out Wright. Two runs, one hit one error.

Fourth inning—Washington—Joe Harris struck out. Judge struck out. Bleuge scratched a single over Wright's head. Bleuge was caught off first. Kremer to McInnis to Moore to Kremer. No runs, one hit, no errors.

The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted

By DOROTHY A. F. MARCELL

Copyright, 1932, Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.

"THE WIFE WHO WASN'T WANTED" with Irene Rich is a picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Eileen Mannering, wife of the district attorney, is present in a notorious inn when it is raided and is seen by the newspaper reporters. Meanwhile, the report is circulated that her husband is about to withdraw from the race for re-election. Their son, Bob, is accused of having caused a woman's death in a motor car smash and his father considers it his duty, as long as he is in office, to prosecute him. This nearly causes an estrangement between husband and wife.

CHAPTER X—Continued

It was as a reviving tonic to her after all of those horrors. Here she once more, she instantly remembered Bob and turned frantically upon Simmie.

"The paper! Give me that paper!" she gasped, clutching at him. But eluding her, Simmie rushed away into the shadows. Away to where the thoughtful Slick had a taxi waiting that they might speed back to Wallace, and during a pleasant journey he might congratulate himself upon the successful outcome of his masterly strategy and share with Simmie the just rewards of so notable a project.

Duped, deserted, alone in the darkness of that unfamiliar spot, Eileen was almost beside herself as she realized her plight. Had she been upheld merely by thoughts of self she might have swooned, surrendering helplessly to her woes. But now, the remembrance of Bob, the mighty stimulus of mother love, buoyed her up, and that hope which sprang eternal in the human breast thrust back her secret.

He hoped to shut out a horrid vision. Wallace was an honest man, who would be no party to so despicable a trick. It was a mistake. It must be a mistake of his too zealous assistants. Could she but get to Wallace all would be well.

Moved by this thought, she started along the road, half running and stumbling blindly in the gloom. Careless of direction and heedless of her surroundings, she was soon breathless, footsore and aching in every muscle. Yet, in the glory of her martyrdom, uplifted by the divine miracle of mother love, she drove her delicately nurtured body to ever greater effort.

Then all in a moment a blinding light enveloped her as might the heavenly fire, some saint. Brakes squealed, and a gruff masculine voice was raised indignantly, to quickly die as she limped forlornly towards him.

With a great gasp of relief, Eileen recognized that it was a taxicab. A taxi which would bear her swift as the wind out of this nightmare of horrors. Bear her wearied limbs and her bruised feet to the soothing solace of a bath, her tired body to the grateful comfort of a soft bed. Ah, never had home seemed more delightful, more inviting.

But at the thought of Bob she steeled her yielding spirits. As she sank, with a sigh that was almost a sob, into the soft cushions of the taxicab, it was Wallace's address she gave the driver.

CHAPTER XI

John Mannering sat alone in his office at the County Court House, while without the shadows of midnight enshrouded the city. He sat at the desk of the District Attorney, in a seat to which he had been called by a vote of his fellow citizens and which he had graced with honor and distinction. Yet there was no pride in his bearing. Rather, as he sat there under the glare of the electric lights was it that of a man unutterably weary by intense feeling. But of a strong man, unbeaten, who, having for a time trodden the path of indecision, has finally chosen the road he proposes to follow regardless of any obstacle.

With a sigh he straightened himself in his chair and made a movement as if to arise when the telephone held him. He drew the instrument towards him, and as he placed the receiver to his ear the voice of Dryden, managing editor of the Star, reached him.

"But, Mannering, you can't withdraw at this late hour—it's impossible."

Was he about to return to the fray? No. His tones rang clear. "There has been a raid at Calkin's Inn, Mannering. The Chronicle was tipped off. They say your wife was there with some man."

A look of incredulity spread over John's face. Imagine Eileen at a roadhouse. He smiled at the thought. Imagine her there with another man. His Eileen—impossible! He laughed aloud at the thought.

"Nonsense, perfect nonsense," he scoffed over the phone.

There was a note of apology in Dryden's voice, but years of newspaper work had hardened him.

For a few moments he sat there, staring straight ahead. Then he reached for the receiver, withdrew his hand, reached again and hesitated. Finally he calmly unhooked the receiver and called his home.

Moments passed, moments that seemed interminable, and he fell to drumming nervously upon his desk. At last a voice answered. It was that of Mary.

"Ah, Mary, do you suppose you could get Mrs. Mannering to the phone without startling her?"

"Eh, don't you know where she is, sir? Mrs. Mannering is not home. Oh, sir, she has not been home tonight."

Ashen white, John hung up the receiver and sank back into his chair. It was as if he had been struck a blow. But in an instant he straightened up. Eileen, it was impossible. And Dryden's message—the rumor? Ah, but his years with her, his knowledge of her, branded the thing as a lie, a damnable black lie for which some one should pay. But she was not home? A mistake, a circumstance for which there was a proper explanation. She had never—

Again the telephone sounded. Its very shrillness seemed portentous. This time it was an unfamiliar voice, a woman's voice, harsh and strained with feeling. It was Greta.

"Would it interest you to know that your wife is visiting her lover, Jerome Wallace, at his apartment?" she said and was gone.

Dazed, but unbelieving, he replaced the receiver. Then, seemingly lifted to his feet by a wave of passion, he sprang up, and running blindly into a chair, he sent it crashing across the room.

"Eileen," he burst forth in hoarse tones. "God, Eileen!" and pressed his hands to his face, as though so he might shut out some horrid vision. Then suddenly he reached for his hat and made for the door, his face terrible in its intensity.

At Wallace's apartment Eileen waited, her face death-like in its pallor. When the Japanese servant appeared she followed him mechanically but unflinchingly.

Wallace's reception of her was characteristic. Although startled at her coming, his manner was easy, that of a man most agreeably surprised.

"Eileen, this is indeed kind of you."

With her big eyes resting accusingly upon him she went directly to the point.

"That paper—I want that signed paper," she insisted.

"Didn't Jennings give it to you?" "No; he kept putting me off," she cried wildly, and then with a flash of intuition, "as you are doing now."

"I?" He seemed amazed at the suggestion.

"Yes," she insisted hysterically. "I've done my part—I've sold out the men I love. Now I want my reward—your signed promise to free my boy."

"There, there, Eileen," he said gently. "No harm has been done. It is all easily remedied. I have only to write you another."

Automobile Hoboes Present New Social Problem In Country

LITTLE ROCK—The "Weary Willie," a unique figure in American life a decade or more ago, is rapidly vanishing from the landscape and is being replaced by a product of the age of the automobile—the "flivver hobo" or rather hoboes, for the new type seldom travels alone, according to officials of Little Rock social agencies.

The "flivver hoboes" are always without money and in most instances accompanied by large families. They enter a city from unknown places and with unknown destinations and apply to community funds and social agencies for aid, sickness being the most common plea.

The usual requests are for money, gasoline and oil or for repairs to their automobiles, officials say. They usually claim that they left home because of labor conditions and are going to some distant place to seek employment, asking aid in getting to their destinations.

Proposals to aid them by selling the automobile are always rejected by the "tourists," records of Little Rock agencies show. Out of a large number of "stranded tourists" who have applied for aid here not one would consider parting with the automobile. Tickets to their homes or to the stated destination are also not desired.

"Most of the 'flivver tourists' that apply for aid are frauds and we do not propose to give them money or gasoline so as to pass them on to some other city," says C. H. Winkard, of the Little Rock Social Service Exchange.

"The Social Service Exchange will aid distressed tourists and will furnish them food and buy medicines when there is sickness, but will not encourage fraud by purchasing gasoline or paying for repairs."

"The 'flivver hobo' is a serious problem that is nation-wide in its scope. These nomads, who are modern tramps, wander aimlessly about the country applying for charity and with no destination or purpose. They are perpetrating fraud on social agencies and community funds in many cities. Correspondence of this office shows that these nomads are applying at many cities in the middle west and that most of them are 'headed west.'"

"The greatest tragedy in connection with the modern hobo is the neglected and under-nourished children who are compelled to follow. They have no opportunity for schooling and their health is in most instances impaired by unnecessary exposure and lack of wholesome food. The compulsory school law does not affect the 'flivver hobo' because they are never stationary and are not registered in any city.

"There seems to be no cure for the evil. When they apply for aid we must help the children or the mothers who are ill or in need of food. This has been done on numerous occasions but in each instance we have refused to buy gasoline and oil or to give money. This would not remedy the situation but would simply pass the responsibility to another city."

ASTORIA, Ore.—The gasoline gypsy, itinerant worker and auto tramp are finding the way hard and small town suckers few and far between in Oregon as a result of activities of social workers. Miss Marian Bowen of the local Red Cross recently reported this condition.

A meeting of social workers was held in Portland in June and a central clearing house was established there, where reports on this class of people are gathered from social workers throughout Oregon and are given state-wide publicity.

Miss Bowen said many applicants for help would fade away from the auto camp when directed where to find work.

Offers U. S. Anti-Aircraft Gun

Joseph Walski, of New York, claims his anti-aircraft gun can be elevated to 90 degrees and fire 7,500 shots a minute. He declares Uncle Sam alone can purchase it.

THEATRES

James Cruze, whose directorial achievements have won him a place in the Motion Picture Hall of Fame—figuratively speaking, since, is yet, there is no such institution in the movies—has recently completed another Paramount production, which pre-release advices are hailing as "a comedy classic."

"Marry Me," is the title of his latest producing effort and local film enthusiasts may see it today at the Princess.

According to those who have been privileged to get an advance peek at "Marry Me," Cruze's knack of humanizing stories on the screen, his genius for balancing humor with pathos, his knowledge of rural American life and his uncanny ability to fit a play or perfectly for every role, have never before been better illustrated.

The story, adapted from "The Nest Egg" by Anne Caldwell, one of the big stage hits of a few seasons back, revolves around a lovely little school teacher whose pursuit of romance leads her into many surprising and unexpected adventures with laughable results.

In the matter of cast, even the most critical picture-goer will concede that Cruze has done his level best, since the players include such prime favorites as Florence Vidor, Edward Everett Horton, Helen Jerome Eddy and John Roche.

If you're feeling blue, need a tonic and want to laugh, see "Marry Me."

Most Women Suffer For Sake of Modesty

They Endure Intense Pain Month After Month Rather Than Make Grievous Condition Known. G. F. P. Can Be Used in Privacy of Home Without the Knowledge of Anyone.

The subject of the peculiar ways in which girls and women suffer is the one which they prefer not to discuss with others; yet they know that as long as they don't get relief, they are doomed to remain in misery.

Knowing this, and feeling that they will be serving such suffering girls and women in the privacy of their homes, the discoverers of St. Joseph's G. F. P. have scattered the sale of this wonderful medicine as broadcast or send to her favorite drug store and simply get G. F. P., without asking questions or giving any information about her condition.

It is deemed a sacred duty to let sister, daughter, wife and mother know that in nine cases out of ten the derangement in their organic functioning which causes pains, irregularity, nervousness, irritability, dependency, and swelling of limbs and joints during pregnancy; as well as continued suffering during the change in their lives, is due almost entirely to the hold which the dreaded maldy—catarrh, has on their organs.

Many a miserable and suffering woman, influenced by that fear of others knowing, and too modest to find reliable help, has endured such distressing ailments just because she had no way of getting relief such as she can do now by simply getting G. F. P. from the nearest drug store.

Women Now Depend on St. Joseph's G. F. P. To Restore Their Vitality

12 Years Ago TODAY

From The Daily of
October 13, 1913

Judge A. H. Alston, of Clayton, is presiding over the current term of circuit court, Judge Speake being in Cullman presiding over a special term of court there.

L. P. Troup delivered an address at an educational rally Sunday at the Willoughby Presbyterian church.

The Decatur concert band will play in Pulaski next Saturday. The band will be under the direction of Director Brannon.

Lieutenant Governor Seed delivered an address Sunday at the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Mrs. H. B. Cagle is in Memphis, visiting her aunt, Mrs. Martin Payne.

"Germany rules at peace meet," says an Age-Herald headline. That is rather a novel role for Germany, isn't it?

Pity Birmingham! After the hot commission race was ended and the votes were counted, it was discovered nobody had a majority and a run-off is necessary. Now Birmingham must go through another one of those bitter city elections.

Members of the Washington Senators and Pittsburgh Pirates are fighting for the championship of the world. Incidentally they also are battling for some $2,500 which spells the difference between the winner's and loser's share for each player.

A citizen said the other day that this newspaper always makes a lot of noise about little improvements. We can't direct him to the fable, "Great Oaks from little acorns grow." We are glad to record any little improvement in these cities, though we have noted in the past year that all the improvements made here have been substantial, costing hundreds of thousands of dollars.

There has been much argument over the contrasting abilities of age and youth and the question of superiority has not yet been settled, probably never will be. The combination of the two, however, usually wins in every line of business. The experience of age and the vitality and courage of youth. What has the Johnson-Harris combination done for the Pirates in two of the games played?

We have not progressed far into the fall season yet, but far enough to see as usual that the Tennessee Valley is leading the state. Cotton production figures point that the Valley section is going to lead the state. This of course is not entirely authentic and may be changed before the end of the year, but this glorious Tennessee valley will go on through the years, its inhabitants accomplishing things others might believe fairly impossible, as cities growing as each annual milestone is passed, its people prospering. That is the faith that the people of this section have in this section.

FLORIDA PLANS TO MAKE STRONG BID FOR ALABAMA'S CHAMPIONSHIP OF SHOW

Word comes from Greenville, S. C., that Florida has formally reserved 6,000 square feet of space, adjoining that reserved for Alabama, in the Southern Exposition, which will be held September 27 to October 6, in New York, next year.

Alabama won the prize for first place in the show this spring, but no especial gift of foresight is required to convince Alabamians that Florida, chagrined because of her first defeat, is coming back strong for the next round in the friendly commercial battle.

Florida will have a comprehensive exhibit at the exposition, there can be no mistake about that. Alabamians can make up their minds now to make their exhibit next year even better than it was last, or give up their place of honor at the head of the procession. However, Alabama has the goods and Alabama can carry off first prize for the second year in succession, if every civic body in the state will begin now to prepare for the occasion. Alabama won on class alone last year, and our natural resources always will be convincing to the outside world, if we but display them properly.

STYLES CHANGE, EVEN IN THE ECONOMICAL LIFE OF THE NATION, IT SEEMS

Announcement was made some days ago of the incorporation of a $400,000,000 baking corporation and the announcement passed with hardly a ripple on the surface of public interest. Some of the financial publications had something to say about the merger, but the public generally was indifferent.

Styles, it seems, change in even the economical life of the nation for, 25 years ago, as the New York Herald-Tribune points out, the announcement would have "been choice morsel for William J. Bryan and the other truststers."

The Herald-Tribune adds: Industry everywhere has turned toward consoli-

tion and economy in operation. The United States cannot compete successfully with other industrial nations unless it standardizes and stabilizes production for export. And the benefits of that standardization are equally apparent in purely domestic industries like baking.

What the public wants is bread of even quality, made of good materials and under sanitary conditions. It is more likely to get that sort of bread from a big bakery concern than from the hundreds of small establishments which formerly operated without adequate guarantees of quality or cleanliness. It is better to have loaves sold of fixed weight and at a regularized price than to trust to the uneven weights and sliding scales of many small manufacturers.

The new $400,000,000 baking corporation is a normal economic development. It is not even remotely a trust, since its estimated production will be less than 10 per cent of the national output. There could never be a damaging monopoly in this country of an article of universal consumption like bread.

THIS IS NOT TOO EARLY TO REMIND VOTERS TIME IS NEAR TO PAY THEIR POLL TAX

The present is not too early for newspapers or any other agency really interested in the public welfare, to begin to remind voters and potential voters that the time is not far when poll taxes should be paid.

Next year Alabama will hold a number of important elections. Offices will be filled and questions of moment will be decided by the electorate. What percentage of all the people will vote? Of course that depends, to some extent, on how many harsh things the candidates say about each other and now well they are able to stir the spirit of partisanship in their supporters. That is a sad commentary, but true.

Even at the end of a bitter campaign, the percentage of votes cast of the total which should be cast, always is disappointingly little.

Every adult of Alabama, who can pass the necessary intelligence tests, should vote. In a number of counties, the most of them do not. Those counties then are governed by a minority, yet we Americans are wont to brag about our majority rule, when such a thing does not exist, except in exceptional localities.

What is the trouble? Every adult who can pass the intelligence test, and who is not barred because of lapses in character, is permitted by the laws to vote, then it cannot be that our laws are wrong. No, indeed, the fault is not with the legal machinery—the fault is with ourselves.

We neglect to register, or we neglect to pay our poll tax, or we neglect to go to the polls, or we persuade ourselves that our votes are not necessary anyway, or we decide that politics is a rotten thing and we will have nothing to do with the election. How silly!

Politics, as an institution, always has been and always will be just what the people themselves make it. Political leaders can be charged with rottenness morning, noon and night, and those who are guilty of malfeasance will never be different until the people themselves correct the evil practices.

And, let it be said here, that politics, as a general thing, is not as bad as uninformed persons might believe. Alabama, for instance, has thrown about elections numerous safeguards. The danger of politics lies not in corruption so much as in neglect by good citizens of their civic responsibilities.

Voting not only is a privilege, but it is a duty, and every person who reaches the voting age, should realize that, and assume that responsibility along with the others of manhood and womanhood.

So, even though it is only October, let us think of our poll tax payment, and of our preparation to participate at all times in the government of our city, our county, our state and our nation. Let us make majority government in Alabama an accomplished fact, instead of only the dream of far-seeing statesmen who preceded us.

MENKE CALLS ON SHOALS COMMISSION TO SUBMIT PLAN FOR OPERATION

A. Menke, president of the Muscle Shoals Board of Commerce, has written a letter to Chairman McKenzie, of the President's Muscle Shoals Commission, in which he makes some very sensible suggestions regarding the future of the great government project in the Tennessee river.

Mr. Menke, in a word, asks Chairman McKenzie and his associates to decide what they want accomplished at Muscle Shoals, then ask Henry Ford if he will not take the project on those terms.

Certainly the public's good could not be served in any better manner than that.

It is a fact that the commission, in seeking some plan for future operation of the plants, has stated that considerable inconvenience has been encountered, because of the shyness of private companies in the matter of making proposals to the government. The government, itself, however, is responsible for this.

After Mr. Ford was invited by the government to make it a proposition before, and he did make a proposition, there were those connected with the government, in an official capacity, who had the audacity to accuse him of everything unworthy, because he had done what his government requested him to do. There is no wonder that he finally withdrew his offer in absolute disgust.

It is surprising that he did not withdraw his offer sooner than he actually did.

It is significant, however, that Mr. Ford states, in a recent issue of Review of Reviews: "We are willing to take Muscle Shoals, with the idea of developing an industrial district about the Shoals and utilizing the power there for whatever industries might want it."

Previously, Mr. Ford had told congress that if it cared to make him a proposition on Muscle Shoals, he would be glad to consider the offer, and added that it would not require two years for him to give his answer either.

When the Detroit manufacturer first entered a bid for Muscle Shoals, he had far less need for the project than he has at present. Within the past few days experts have testified that of all the places in the nation, the Tennessee Valley offers one of the best locations for the manufacture of light metals, to be used in airplane manufacture. Mr. Ford, at present, is a pioneer in the development of commercial aviation. Isn't the advantage offered by the tie-up of Muscle Shoals and Henry Ford on the matter of aviation striking?

Mr. Menke also suggests to Chairman McKenzie that General Atterbury, head of the Pennsylvania railroad, has expressed a desire to manufacture aluminum freight cars at Muscle Shoals. Let him do it, is Mr. Menke's suggestion. By all means, give the General the opportunity he desires.

Mr. Menke's letter is most timely. The commission soon will make up its recommendations and report them to the President, who, in turn, will transmit his recommendations to congress. Surely by bringing into the development of the Shoals such men as Ford and Atterbury, the commission could not go far wrong.

AFFECTION, which is more important than food. She can let somebody else do the cooking and wash the clothes just as well.

Every woman ought to have children and every woman ought to have an intellectual life.

No woman ought to work merely for money, the meanness of all the many occupations. But every woman should be engaged in "intellectual activity," and most of them are, fortunately. You don't have to be a female lawyer or doctor to be intellectually active.

ENGLISH women of rank and fashion, and many with money but without rank or fashion, "are turning pink." That means they are joining the Socialist Labor Party, following in the wake of Lady Mosley, daughter of the Marquis of Curzon. If she runs for Parliament on the Socialist ticket there must be something in it.

THAT happened in America. Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, formerly Mrs. Clarence Mackay, now Mrs. Joseph Blake, "went in" for female suffrage when it was new. They lectured and urged, and many estimable suburban ladies joined for fashion's sake.

All very old. When Parmentier introduced the potato vine into France the potatoes grew. But nobody would eat them. They were queer, from America and therefore suspicious.

The King ordered his nobles to wear potato blossoms in their buttonholes to make them fashionable. That changed the situation. When the nobles wore the blossoms, the common people ate the potatoes.

BISHOP WILLIAM MONTGOMERY BROWN of Arkansas, in his old age, is to be deposed. That, probably is just. If he doesn't agree with other bishops they have a right to part from him.

In one way the aged bishop is to be congratulated. In the year 1925 he will not be compelled to appear barefooted dressed in sackcloth, with a cord around his neck.

He will not have to kneel down, vowing that he "retracts, adjures, and abhors his heresy." And he will not be told that he can take his choice between rejecting, adjuring, abhorring and being burned alive.

We do unpleasant things still, but we do them less unpleasantly.

AS THE new week begins, Allies and Germans are gathering on some kind of League of Nations, or agreement, not to cut each other's throats. Germany will come into the League. Good luck and more power to them.

May they have their league, may it be the most successful and may they have it to themselves.

We already have our league over here: 48 United States that do not attack each other, rob each other, or hate each other. We need no better league than that.

Or, if we do need more, it would be closer and friendlier relations with our neighbors south and north of us on this continent.

THOUGHTS

OF THE WEEK

By J. A. West

HARVEST DAYS

Harvest days with their expectancy have always been appealing. How many times the production of the crop being worked is figured and conjectured over and over in the mind of the farmer as he cultivates it, is but the experience of these men of the soil. Carefully every feature of the growing process is watched, and intelligent means used to forward its growth, is the experience of all.

First comes the crop of hay which nature so generously provides in this country, and when ready, the clatter of the cycle makes fine music as it lays low a fine crop of hay, and aided by the sunshine it is soon rendered sweet and fit to house. Meadows are lovely places, especially those in close proximity to some woodland, as dotted here and there with new-mown hay cocks, when the sun has streaked the heavens with crimson, just as the sun goes down. The perfume of new-mown hay has always been appealing.

There is a feeling of security and thankfulness as barns are piled high with forage of all kinds, and the corn crib is bulging out with a plentiful supply of corn.

To sit around a hearthstone in a farm home where the warmth of the glowing embers from hickory wood make one sit back, and to know that in the smoke house, barn and crib there is piled food substances, the reward of the toil of the farmer, as he looks out on field and wood when winter has carpeted the ground with a white mantle, and the shrill winds are telling of the fierceness of the wintry season, is compensation with satisfaction thrown in.

All of these things require patient work before they can be realized, but there is a certain appealing security treasured within them which more than compensates for the laborious toil of the year.

CO-OPERATION

There is a world of meaning wrapped up in this one word, cooperation. In nature, if there was not cooperation among all the forces, havoc would be wrought.

How much truer, if perchance it could be, that cooperation should exist among the teeming millions of earth, that the best things might be accomplished and progress along right lines be not hindered.

Homes must have co-operation among the occupants of it to exist. Business concerns employing large numbers of clerical men, would not retain them a minute unless they thought that they would co-operate

BE A "GOOD PATIENT" IF YOU GET ILL

Co-Operate with the Doctor and Nurses to Your Fullest Ability and You'll Likely Get
Well Much Sooner.By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

YOU hear doctors and nurses talking about "good patients" and "bad patients." What do they mean?

I have been thinking about this. I have been wondering if I might say something to help increase the number of good patients.

Nobody can tell beforehand how he will act when he gets sick. The most amiable person in the world may become a petulant, impatient, fault-finding and obstinate sick person.

A good patient is one who co-operates with the doctor and nurse. A good patient realizes that the nasty medicine, the vile gruels, the nauseating "spoon vittels," are given for her good. They are not given to annoy and disturb the suffering patient. They may be most unwelcome to the sick one, but they have a purpose, haven't they?

Everybody strives to promote the comfort and to lessen the misery of the sick. Nobody would think of scolding a sick person. It would be the height of cruelty to do this. But when you get sick, bear in mind how anxious are the family and the medical attendants. They work day and night to defeat disease. But they will fail if you don't help.

A great deal depends on getting the patient to take a reasonable quantity of nourishment every day. The food doesn't taste good and it is hard to swallow it. But it will help very much if the patient will co-operate.

You just can't force a patient to drink or to swallow food. That is out of the question. Without the assistance of the patient the needed nourishment cannot be given. You see, co-operation is absolutely essential.

I am telling you these things while you are well and strong. You should ponder them and get them into your subconscious mind. Then when you are sick you will be a good patient. There are some folks who go to bed "sick" when they are not half sick. They grumble and scold, fight the nurse, push the medicine away and sneer at the doctor. They are just too disagreeable for anything. They are, indeed, bad patients.

to the fullest extent with the management in the prescribed business rules promulgated by that concern.

Towns and cities must have co-operation upon the part of its citizenship while those duly elected and licensed to look after the business of such places pass on ordinances and edicts which in their best judgment is good for that particular locality. It is unfortunate indeed for factions to exist in either town or city. It hampers the work of those who are trying to do the best thing possible, and renders their efficient efforts in many instances feeble.

Of all the places where co-operation fits in best, is the schools of our land. Co-operation upon the part of patrons with the teachers of any school, will make that school efficient. Non-co-operation upon the part of patrons, will have the opposite effect, and be quick in its work.

It is said that the immense manufacturing plant of Henry Ford is

The Frog That Gets Out of the Hole Is the One That Counts

So it is with men and women—boys and girls. Stay in the hole and you are never heard of—get out and the world will honor you. Greater happiness and success is yours.

Work Is Honorable

This is not an appeal to those who are above work. They may inherit a fortune, but personally they can never amount to anything. They are like drone bees living off the workers. There is this difference: the drone bee serves a useful purpose, the human drone does not.

Many Ways of Getting Out of the Hole

There are many fields of usefulness, many ways of rising above the common level. We offer only one way, but our work will help in all useful fields of endeavor. It is the best friend a young person can have who wants to go to college and does not have the money. It will help you if you are a farmer, a wage earner, a lawyer, a doctor, a business man, or what not. You will all transact business and the better you know how to transact it, the more successful you are.

94 Per Cent of the Officials of Our Large Corporations Took a Business Course

78% of our successful men of today were from poor families. Government figures show that 85% of the male population of our great country earn less than $22.00 per week.

Does Education Pay?

One hundred American boys and girls start out to conquer the world. Sixty-three finish grammar school, thirty-four enter high school, thirteen graduate from high school, seven begin specialized training and only one finishes. Eighty of those who drop by the wayside will earn less than $20.00.00 per year, while sixty of them will barely eke out a living.

Specialized Training Always Pays

By all means specialize in something. For the time and money spent, nothing pays like a business course. We offer you the best of instruction by well-trained teachers, new equipment and a position if you meet our requirements. We have the means of placing you in Birmingham or other large cities, and think of what you can save in tuition and board. At least talk it over with us.

"I got very thin—I went from 126 pounds down to less than 100. My mother had long been a user of Cardui and she knew what a good medicine it was for this trouble, so she told me to get some and take it. I sent to the store after it and before I had taken the first bottle I began to improve."

"My side hurt less and I began to improve in health. ... The Cardui acted as a fine tonic and I do not feel like the same person. I am so much better. I am well now. ## Eyes Of North Alabama Turned Now To Tiger-Tide Classic On Saturday

The eyes of North Alabama football fandom are turning toward Birmingham, where on Saturday the Tiger from the Sewanee mountain top will attempt to fight his way to victory through a Crimson Tide from Alabama.

Since 1910, with the single exception of 1918, these two eleven have met on the gridiron. Across the long span of years they have faced each other on chilly October afternoons and attempted to knock the everlasting stuffing out of each other, but in quite a gentlemanly fashion, if such a thing is possible. The point of the narrative is that the Alabama-Sewanee battle has come to be more or less of a tradition, and regardless of defeats or disasters in other meetings, when these two ancient football rivals clash, they give their all. They play their hearts out to win.

This year North Alabama fandom will have an extra interest in the combat, for many local fans plan to go to the game to watch, for the first time, Raymond Pepper, formerly Albany high star, in action in a Crimson jersey. "Pep" who appears to be underestimating Pooley Hubert this season, already has taken part in the three appearances of the "Bama variety," and it is considered certain that he will see action also against the Tiger for the Tiger usually requires a good deal of food and few "Bama reserves" there are, who are not called upon to step into the breach when other feet have faltered against the Tiger.

This afternoon they are back at it in Pittsburgh. The Pirates appear to have been reading some of the exploits of other brigands, who fictionists always placed on the brink of disaster, before extricating them from their perilous position. Pittsburgh stock could hardly have been lower than it was Monday afternoon, when suddenly the Pirate bats went into action. Big hits replaced puny thumps at the infield, and line drives smote opposing outfielders' gloved fists, whereas before there had been nothing but weak belts.

The Pirates, heralded as the hitting team in all baseball, had been as clay in the hands of the Washington pitchers before Monday. But Monday opened another chapter. It may have been a great awakening, or it may only have been a flash in the pan. Today will prove the case.

Dodge Brothers Announce New Credit Purchase Plan

Announcement is made by Dodge Brothers, Inc., that they have adopted a new plan for financing the sale of Dodge Brothers Motor Cars and Graham Brothers Trucks, which is to be known as Dodge Brothers CREDIT PURCHASE PLAN and which facilities are now being offered by Commercial Investment Trust Incorporated and its affiliated companies to all Dodge Brothers Dealers.

It is expected that it will be generally adopted without delay, by Dodge Brothers, Inc., Dealers, who are now being instructed in its details by Dodge Brothers, Inc., and Commercial Investment Trust representatives. "All details will be available through dealers to anyone interested in the purchase of a Dodge Brothers Motor Car or a Graham Brothers Truck after the new plan becomes effective, October 1st" it was said at Detroit.

A letter by President F. J. Haynes to all Dodge Brothers Dealers included the following:

"Our policy having always been that the lowest possible cost should prevail to the public, the Dodge Brothers Credit Purchase Plan, should because of its low rate, appeal to all buyers of Dodge Brothers Motor Cars desiring credit.

"The plan makes it absolutely unnecessary for a purchaser of a Dodge Brothers Motor Car desiring credit to pay more than the rates quoted."

Hartselle News

Rev. Black, pastor of the Baptist church at Albertville, preached last Sunday morning and evening at the First Baptist church, upon invitation of the membership. Rev. G. C. Walker, the pastor for the last three years up to a short time since, accepted a call to Birmingham, hence the church is at present without a pastor. Invitations have been extended to other Baptist pastors to fill this pulpit until a call is made. Rev. Black made a most favorable impression upon the congregation who heard him. He was accompanied here by Mrs. Black, and were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Sherrill during their stay in this city.

Capt. R. A. Burleson returned last week from Florida, whither he went looking after some road contracts near St. Augustine, Florida. He will ship a car load of mules down to that section during the next few days. Captain Burleson reports things booming in the peninsula state, and that there is work a plenty.

Rev. R. W. Anderson filled his regular appointments at the First Methodist church last Sunday morning and evening. The pastor is fully recovering from a slight illness which kept him confined to his room for several days. His congregation is truly glad to see him out again.

The gins here are getting their first slow up since the cotton season began. Up to this time they have been forced to run day and night to take care of the cotton offered for ginning. Since the big slump in the price of cotton a few days since, many have refused to sell and are storing.

The last work on the dam across Shoal Creek was begun after operations were suspended three weeks since awaiting rain. The dam is now being built across the creek, and contractors hope to finish it this week. The first rise in the creek will be the signal to stock the pond, which will be done from nearby creeks and ponds in addition to thousands of fish already ordered from the government fish hatchery.

T. E. Crittendon is erecting another nice bungalow residence in the eastern part of town. It is rumored that Mr. Crittendon will begin another one in the same section soon. During the last three years Mr. Crittendon has done a large part in helping to create enough residences here to meet the demand. He has more than a dozen in different parts of the city, and they are all nice ones, standing to his credit as a public spirited citizen.

The World Series baseball games have been the one object of conversation since they began and fans have been regularly at the radio stations each afternoon listening at the reports sent out of the games thus far. The fans here are about evenly divided between Washington and Pittsburgh.

Dr. W. M. Booth and family accompanied by some other friends attended the Vanderbilt-Texas football game at Nashville, Tenn., last Saturday. Dr. Booth has a son on the Vanderbilt lineup, and plays right end. Vaughn Booth has the makeup of a fine football man, and his name was mentioned as one having contributed in no small way to the success of Vanderbilt in last Saturday's game. Dr. Booth himself a former player on the Vanderbilt team when a medical student there, takes great pride in the fact that today he has a son on the same team. The party were in high spirits when they returned Saturday night about nine o'clock, and declared he had had one of the most enjoyable days of recent years.

The first game on the home grounds will be staged next Friday afternoon, when Morgan Hi meets Decatur High on the M. C. H. S. field. Great interest is being attached to the game, the Morgan team having played one game and won one game, that being with Gunterville at Gunterville.

After Decatur comes Cullman high this game to be played within the fair grounds during the fair.

Quite a heavy frost was plainly in evidence Sunday morning, killing tender vegetation. The first ice of the season was also seen.

SERIES HEADLIGHTS

Adams—Senators
Released by Pittsburgh two years ago, Spencer Adams, second baseman and utility infielder, is hoping for a chance at revenge in the world's series. Adams, one of the few college players on the Nationals, had little opportunity to display his wares during the season with Manager Harris at second and Bluge at third playing steadily. He got into the lineup in the final drive, however, when Harris was injured and became a big question mark when it was doubtful whether the manager of the champions would be able to recover in time for the series.

A clever fielder and fast man on the bases, the big question was Adams' hitting ability. He settled some doubt along this line when he broke up an extra inning game against Chicago with a single. Adams was born in Layton, Utah, June 21, 1899. After playing with the University of Utah he went to Seattle in 1922 and a year later to Pittsburgh from where he was sent to Oakland, Calif. Washington got Adams last winter through the draft. He throws right handed and bats left handed.

Myer—Senators
Charles "Buddy" Myer, utility infielder, is the "baby" of the champions. Purchased from New Orleans late this season, the youthful Mississippi collegian is being held ready for emergency use at either shortstop or third base. A bad shoulder, practically healed now, prevented Myer from getting into the champions lineup in their final drive for the pennant.

Myer was born at Ellisville, Mississippi, March 16, 1904, and started his baseball career with Mississippi Agriculture and Mechanics University. He reported to Cleveland from training last Spring and was farmed out to New Orleans from where Washington bought him in August. He throws right handed and bats left handed.

DOUBLE FUNERAL FOR AUTO VICTIMS

Couple Killed As Train Hits Machine At Grade Crossing

(Associated Press)
MILBROOK, Ala., Oct. 13.—Double funeral services for C. E. Sherman, 26, of Montgomery, and Miss Carrie Lou Bibb, 18, of Prattville, victims of an automobile crash near Montgomery Monday, were to have been held at the Rocky Mount cemetery, 12 miles west of here this morning.

The young couple was killed when a small coupe, which they were riding, stuck by a Western Railway of Alabama train at a grade crossing, about six miles out from Montgomery on the Selma-Montgomery high-

"Tex" Jeane to the attention of Manager Harris and after his purchase from Birmingham, Ala., late this season the Southern League swatter proved his worth on several occasions with Washington. He was used frequently in the closing stages of the campaign and delivered several long hits. He also proved a valuable asset in the outfield, going to the center position when he was in the lineup. Jeane is a native of Texas and first attracted notice in the baseball world while playing with Trinity College there. He was with Cleveland before going to Birmingham.

Ballou—Senators
Coming to the Nationals when Marberry, regular relief twirler, was forced out of the game by a sore arm, Winfred Ballou gave the champions timely and valuable service in this respect late this season. The youthful Kentuckian appeared completely recovered from an injury to his throwing arm which kept him from the game for an entire season two years ago. Ballou, who twirls from the right side, was purchased from Chattanooga in the Southern League. He is 24 years old and a native of Harlan, Ky.

"Wagner at the Bat!"

Remember the "Flying Dutchman" of the yesteryear Pirates—the bowlegged shortstop and star swatter? He was poked into the limelight at Pittsburgh before the opening world's series game and posed with Ty Cobb and Babe Adams, who, with him, shone in the blue-ribbon classic just sixteen years ago. Babe and Ty are still in the game.
